Exposure to particulate matter (PM) has been linked to many health issues, including respiratory complications, cardiovascular disease, and cancer.
Firefighters are potentially exposed to PM throughout a fire call.
While the PM encountered during firefighting is composed of hundreds of chemicals, the types that are most easily inhaled and